as part of its campaign to rid the schools and colleges of socialistic, un-American teachings and teachers.

NOTE: In order to thoroughly understand this report and the reasons for its inclusions and omissions, it is essential to read these first four pages.

The accompanying tabulation gives the names of 35 Yale University faculty members and their 157 affiliations with 82 communist fronts.

With some few exceptions, the organizations and enterprises cited herein have been officially designated as communist fronts by one or more government agencies and investigating committees. In general, those exceptions are local organizations, or are so new that no official agency has had a chance to report on them as yet. They, however, follow the usual communist line, are continually promoted by the Daily Worker, and have the chronic fellow travelers as members.

The seriousness of communist-front affiliations is not to be measured solely in quantitative terms - some communist fronts have been more obviously subversive than others. The dates also should be taken into consideration. Affiliation with communist-front organizations in 1948 and 1949 has a significance which would not necessarily attach to such association in 1933 or '34, for the reason that each passing year has added to public understanding of the sinister character of communist-front organizations.

Inclusion of a professor or instructor in this list is not conclusive evidence that he is a communist. He may be simply naive.

Similarly, this list does not necessarily include all Yale University professors who may be pro-communist. Some of the most malefic and dangerous persons in America are not on any communist front: they are secret members of the Communist Party - sometimes high in its councils.

The greatest indictment against the professorial fellow travelers of the Communist Party is that they lend an air of harmlessness, even respectability, to the vicious, debased movement that is Communism.

Owing to the frequent changes of university personnel, the listed title or subject taught may not be permanently correct. They are correct, however, as of press date, July 15, 1949, in accordance with the latest catalog of the University. Also, some professors are not at present connected with the organizations listed. In fact, certain of the organizations were of a temporary nature, created for a specific purpose, and are no longer in existence. In each case, however, documentary proof is available as to the affiliation at the date given.

In addition to the professors listed herein, the Council has the record of many other Yale University professors who have been connected with one or more communist fronts. A name with only one or two affiliations is not included in this report unless either (1) the organization was particularly bad, or (2) the affiliation was recent. Many professors having only one or two affiliations were not included, because their membership occurred some time ago and there have been no indications that they have aided communists recently. In the early days, a person possibly could have been affiliated with a communist front and yet be innocent of any desire to aid Communism. Those, however, who have participated in recent years - since the activities and purposes of these organizations have become so well known - can be viewed with suspicion. Most people will infer logically that when a professor is on several communist fronts, it is no accident - that he knows what he is doing.

This dossier includes only the names of men who have been affiliated with communist or communist-front activities. It does not include the names of other members of the Yale faculty who teach Socialism, Collectivism and planned economy, who snipe and sneer at capitalism, or who are unalterably opposed to the American system of freedom and free enterprise. For instance, Professor Robert L. Calhoun and Professor Douglas C. Macintosh, both of the Yale Divinity School, as long ago as 1935, declared themselves as favoring Socialism, by being among the signers of the following letter which on November 29, 1935, the National Religion and Labor Foundation sent to President Roosevelt as a public letter. To give it added importance, the unusual step was taken of having it individually signed by a group of influential churchmen. The letter is too long to quote in full, but can be found in the public press of that date. Here are some excerpts, however, that give the flavor of it:

Thousands of ministers throughout the United States respect your purpose to change the economic situation for the benefit of the working people. They are willing to grant that you have done far more than any previous administration, but they are convinced that you have not gone far enough. They deplore the fact that billions of dollars ... have been spent without making any basic change in our social order

We hold that there can be no permanent recovery so long as the nation depends on palliative legislation within the capitalistic system We urge you to take drastic steps, in cooperation with your associates in government, to see that the standard of living of all people rises to the level made possible through socializing our potential resources.... (Italics are ours.)

Also, Professor H. Richard Niebuhr of the Yale Divinity School has been a member of this same National Religion and Labor Foundation and on the national advisory committee of the Workers' Defense League, both of which are socialist organizations rather than communist fronts. Numbers of other Yale professors fall in this category.

A few of the names listed herein are professors "emeritus." In some instances, these were active professors at the date of their association with the communist fronts. In any case, however, they are still carried in the catalog and are using the prestige of Yale to aid communists in their avowed program to destroy America.

It doubtless will be contended that professors have a right to join any organization they wish. This is most certainly their right. But the alumni, contributors, parents of students, and the students themselves, have a right to know to what un-American organizations their professors belong. Also, if graduates and donors feel that because of such participation the professor or the school is not a fit one to support, or parents feel that the University is not a proper one to have their child attend, it is their right to take steps to remedy the situation.

In all fairness, it should be pointed out that, more than almost any other president of a large university, President Seymour of Yale has seemed to oppose un-American teachings. However, as the following report indicates, there is still much room for improvement at Yale.
